Post Instructions:

One guard need to roam for alcohol (they are not allowed to bring their own in, and if it says the bar is closed on the work order there should be no alcohol PERIOD) as well as be in the area as a presence to prevent unwanted behavior. The other guard needs to roam the parking lot to make sure no one is drinking their own alcohol in their cars, beside their cars, etc. and create a presence for crowd control and other related alcohol issues. If they are drinking alcohol they purchased from the bar in the parking lot this is okay. Find out what the bar is serving so you can determine the difference between the bar's alcohol and if someone may have brought their own stash. When you are roaming, look under tables, the bottom of strollers, and watch actions to see if anyone is taking alcohol out of bags, cars, etc. Some people bring in coolers. Ask to look inside and just explain to them it is policy that no alcohol can come onto site. Communicate with the bartender. Sometimes they see things that we might not. Remember that people trying to get away with stuff will watch you closely, so also look for anyone that might be eyeing you down. They don't pay as much attention to the bartender, which is why sometimes the bartender might catch something that we miss.

of people attendin varies per event. There should always be one guard inside each party area (if there is more than one going on for that date – ask the schedulers) and there should always be 1 roaming the lot. The leads should be able to answer any questions you have. If it is a pavilion event and there are 3 guards or more, 1 guard should stay posted to watch the volleyball area.
